THE TRIAL OF PRINCE EULENBERG.

Opening Of The Perjury Case.

Berlin, June 29.

The trial of Prince Ze Eulenberg, charged with perjury and with inciting another person to commit perjury in connection with the "round table" revelations of last summer, began here to-day. At the request of the prosecuting attorney the public and the newspaper correspondents will be excluded throughout the trial.

The Prince, who was carried into the court-room in a chair half an hour before the court opened, chatted cheerfully with his wife and sons while waiting for proceedings to begin. He appeared composed and confident. The trial is expected to continue for at least a week.

Among the witnesses present were Count Kuro von Moltke, former military governor of Berlin, who has been living in retirement in Egypt since the trial of his suit against M. Harden for libel; Mr. Bernstein, who defended Harden in the Moltke-Harden libel suit, and various ladiespeople from Starnberg and Liebenberg where the Prince had his country seats. The jurors, who were selected in ten minutes, are mainly mechanics, manufacturers and directors in other concerns.

FLOCK OF SHEEP STOLEN.

PARIS, July 29.

An exploit reminiscent of the Middle Ages, namely, the raiding of a flock of 350 sheep just outside the capital and the death of the shepherd in circumstances which point to murder, is the latest Parisian sensation. The sheep were grazing on waste land on the banks of the River Marne, under the care of an old man, who was known as Pere Fritz. On Friday morning a man, attracted by the howling of the shepherd's dog, entered the small movable hut in which Pere Fritz slept and found him lying dead. The sheep had gone, but were soon traced, as the flock had obstructed the tramways while they were being driven across the Charenton Bridge late on Wednesday night.

Following this clue the police last night arrested at a public-house near Mont-Parnasse station a young man named Mariel, who confessed to having sold the sheep at Pantin and La Villette markets for £620. He declared that he had only acted as the agent of two men who had the appearance of horse dealers, and professed entire ignorance as to whence the flock came. That he had accomplished seems evident from the fact that taxes to the amount of £24 were paid on the sheep passing the octroi. Mariel spent nearly £40 of the proceeds of the sale buying a watch and chain, several suits of clothes and other articles. The remainder of the £236 was found on him. It appears that several previous attempts to raid the flock had been frustrated by the vigilance of Printemps, the sheep dog, which is still faithfully guarding the empty hut.
